WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Medford Weather:

A cold front moved through the west side last night and is now crossing the east side. The coast got more rain than expected with some spots seeing up to three quarters of an inch. by contrast, rain was much more sparse over inland west side locations with some places, like Medford, getting little to none. Showers will linger through the morning from the cascades west, but in general, precipitation will be on the decrease today. Snow levels have dropped and snow is now falling down to around 5000 feet in the cascades. We may see a couple of inches up around and north of Crater Lake this morning, but it shouldn't have too much impact as road surfaces are warm. Temperatures will be noticeably cooler area-wide today as cooler air streams in behind the front.

Eureka Weather:

The weak cold front that brought us light rain overnight is now moving East of the region giving rise to clearing skies and slightly cooler temperatures today. This cooling affect will be short lived as ridging building over the west coast over the next few days will lead to a quick return to mostly sunny skies and warming temperatures.

Reno Weather:

A weak disturbance may cool temperatures a few degrees and provide some increased clouds into Tuesday, but overall precipitation chances will be minimal through much of the week. Temperatures will warm by the middle of the week before wetter and cooler conditions return for the weekend and into the start of next week.

San Francisco Weather:

Warming trend starts today with seasonable temperatures...trending above normal Tuesday followed by record or near record warmth on Wednesday. Dramatic cooling is forecast to occur Thursday as an upper low approaches and stratus returns to the coast and valleys as southerly winds usher in cooler air. A chance of showers Friday into the weekend with seasonably cool temperatures.

Sacramento Weather:

Warm and dry weather into Thursday with locally breezy conditions. Next chance of precipitation arrives Friday

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Hanford Weather:

Above normal temperatures will continue across Central California through mid-week with possible record breaking heat on Wednesday. Otherwise a series of storm systems will impact the region later this week and into the weekend.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

High pressure aloft will keep temperatures above normal today with some coastal low clouds and fog this morning. For Tuesday and Wednesday offshore low will bring much warmer temperatures to the area. For Thursday through the weekend a couple of low pressure systems will bring cooler conditions with the chance of some precipitation.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Warm and dry weather will continue through Wednesday with high temperatures around 10 degrees above average for inland areas. The marine layer and weak onshore flow will keep coastal areas cooler with areas of night and morning low clouds and fog. Weak offshore flow will bring locally gusty northeast winds near the coastal foothills on Wednesday. For Thursday through next weekend a pair of pacific low pressure systems will bring cooling more clouds and chances for showers.

Southeast California Weather:

Much warmer than normal temperatures will continue to increase through Wednesday with most lower elevation communities seeing highs well into the 90s. An unsettled weather pattern will finally return to the southwest by the end of this week yielding somewhat cooler and more cloudy conditions along with decent chances for rainfall.
